1977-1977,1981-1987. 1995

Founder and director of eleven of The Edmonton Area and All Alberta Studies

This project involved mounting a major attitudinal survey each year to a sample of between 600 and a thousand respondents. Money was raised through the sale of some questions to outside agencies. The data from this study were then provided to researchers within the University of Alberta, as well as to outsiders, for analysis. The EAS/AAS have served as a model of co-operative research for other Universities, with the most successful replication being done at the University of Manitoba.

1993-6 Conflict in the Community, SSHRCC ($140,000).

This study focuses on the roots of social conflict and their relationship to violent behaviour. Using a total sample of 2,000 respondents from Alberta and Manitoba, we examine the bases for interpersonal confrontation in the community and tie this to an understanding of how disputes escalate into serious aggressiveness and crime.

1991-2 Immigration and Settlement Patterns: Demographic Change and Implications for Policing in Canada, Canadian Police College ($20,000).

This study examined how settlement patterns in Canada have influenced the levels of police force staffing across the country over time.

1991 Review of Community Policing, Canadian Police College, ($11,000).

This was a review of the evaluation process that is undertaken by police forces across the country in assessing the success or failure of their community policing initiatives.

1989 Project on Goals for Policing the RCMP, Solicitor General of Canada, ($4,000).

K Division of the RCMP commissioned a report on how to implement and evaluate community policing in a select group of detachments across Alberta.

1988 Community Knowledge of Family Violence, LaMarsh Program on Social Conflict, York University, ($4,000).

This study examined the extent to which domestic violence is apparent, through informal networks, in communities.

1985 Project on Family Violence, Solicitor General of Canada ($5,000).

A report was commissioned to identify the major issues that needed to be studied in the monitoring of family violence in small communities in Alberta.

1979 General Plan Reviews of Leduc and Fort Saskatchewan sponsored by Edmonton Regional Planning Commission ($51,000).

This research was used as citizen input, through surveys, into the general planning process in these communities.

1978 The Citizens' Concerns Study sponsored by the Office of the Mayor of Edmonton ($55,000).

This survey solicited responses from a cross-section of about 1300 Edmontonians about the quality of urban services. The information was then used to redirect resources to areas of need in the programme reviews done by city agencies.
