“Moms and Merchants: Silk Road Treasures from Northwest China, 4th-7th Century,” an exhibition at the Asia Society, will reenact a nomadic family traveling along the Silk Road. The exhibit will be on display throughout the fall. Juliano, chair of the visual and performing arts department, and costume and textiles curator for the Asia Society, collected 120 artifacts that show the interaction of religion, trade and culture over three years gathering the materials. The exhibit was curated by Annette Juliano, assistant professor of art history and cultural studies at the University of Connecticut, and exhibition director for the Asia Society.

TICKER TAPE
A selected list from spring and summer 2001

Exhibition looks at Newark’s vibrant arts and culture

What’s Happening

By Carla Capizzi

What’s Happening throughout the city.

www.downtownnewark.com offers a

973/733-9333 Fax: 973/733-9339

Newark Downtown

Check out these websites for a

973/596-6550 www.newarkmuseum.org

The Newark Museum

Chinese artifaccts that will be on display at the Asia Society, Asia Society is located 725 Park Avenue in New York City. will be at the Asia Society from Oct. 13 through Jan. 6. The religious objects.

CHINESE ART DISCOVERS WHAT IT MEANS TO BE CHINESE

exhibition of Chinese artifacts curated by Annette Juliano, By Carla Capizzi

CHINESE ART DISCOVERS WHAT IT MEANS TO BE CHINESE

exhibition of Chinese artifacts curated by Annette Juliano, By Carla Capizzi

CHINESE ART DISCOVERS WHAT IT MEANS TO BE CHINESE

exhibition of Chinese artifacts curated by Annette Juliano, By Carla Capizzi

CHINESE ART DISCOVERS WHAT IT MEANS TO BE CHINESE

exhibition of Chinese artifacts curated by Annette Juliano, By Carla Capizzi

CHINESE ART DISCOVERS WHAT IT MEANS TO BE CHINESE

exhibition of Chinese artifacts curated by Annette Juliano, By Carla Capizzi

CHINESE ART DISCOVERS WHAT IT MEANS TO BE CHINESE

exhibition of Chinese artifacts curated by Annette Juliano, By Carla Capizzi

BOOKWORMS guests devoured 3,200 lbs. of lettuce, 960 gallons of ice cream, HAPPY MEALS from the Newark campus during the 2000–2001 academic year…

With apologies to Mr. Ripley, here are some little-known, not-free, unless otherwise noted. Dates, not-necessarily-useful and hopefully interesting, facts about the

BY CARLA CAPIZZI

BOOKWORMS guests devoured 3,200 lbs. of lettuce, 960 gallons of ice cream, HAPPY MEALS from the Newark campus during the 2000–2001 academic year…

With apologies to Mr. Ripley, here are some little-known, not-free, unless otherwise noted. Dates, not-necessarily-useful and hopefully interesting, facts about the
Believe It or Not…

The Rutgers campus has a number of art galleries, including the Center Art Gallery, 350 Dr. MLK Jr. Blvd., and the New Jersey Turnpike

Dana Library, 185 University Ave., 4th Floor Gallery, Nov. 2–Jan. 11

WEDDING BELLS WERE RINGING

Eleven happy couples held their wedding receptions Oct. 18, 15E: Contemporary Art

What's Happening On and Around Campus

Newark

BY IRENE O'BRIEN

NJ State Police Introduces Scholars Program at Rutgers-Newark

The New Jersey Attorney General’s Office has established the New Jersey State Police Rutgers-Newark Scholars Program. The program is designed to provide students with opportunities to develop and understand the principles of law enforcement and public service as they relate to the field of criminal justice. The New Jersey Division of Criminal Justice is the sponsor of the program.

The program is open to students majoring in criminal justice or related disciplines. New Jersey residents, including undergraduate students, are eligible to apply.

In addition, the program offers a variety of academic benefits such as

1. Free admission to Rutgers-Newark’s Law School
2. Professional liability insurance
3. Opportunity to network with other students and professionals in the field

For more information, please contact the Rutgers-Newark Office of Outreach and Engagement at 973-353-5119, ext. 28.
Believe It or Not…

PEDAL PUSHERS

Over the academic year hungry Stony Brook residents and HAPPY MEALS necessarily-useful and hopefully interesting, facts about the mail, and metered 500,000 pieces of outgoing mail.

185 University Ave.

Center Art Gallery, 350 Dr. MLK Jr. Blvd., 4th Floor Gallery,

Nov. 2–Jan. 11

EXHIBITIONS

free, unless otherwise noted. Dates,

Portuguese Contemporary

15E: Contemporary Art

Oct. 11

Presentations, presented by Steve

Physical Plant employees used 2,000 lbs. of fertilizer and 1,000

THE GREENING OF R-N

hosted by both internal and external groups. These included

The Rutgers-NJIT shuttle bus made 15,350 runs

Services office; they also filled 2,320 prescriptions at the

The campus locksmith tooled 1,500 keys last year.

There are 2,394 parking spaces on the campus, including paper and cardboard, 45 tons of aluminum,

WASTE NOT

WASTE NOT

Get more information, check events,

LIVING WITH RUTGERS

Once a month, we bring together six intelligent

NJ State Police Introduces Scholars Programs at Rutgers-Newark

TALKS & LECTURES

What’s Happening on and around campus

What’s Happening on and around campus

HARTFORD, Conn. — At the request of his chair,

Newark campus during the 2000–2001 academic year…

12:17 pm, School of Communication Arts,

The Department of Public Administration received $150,332 from the Department of Health and Senior Services, and the directors of the NJCPP. The project’s of arts in jazz history—the world’s

WOMEN’S SOCCER

What's Happening on and around campus

NJ State Police Introduces Scholars Programs at Rutgers-Newark

WOMEN’S VOLLEYBALL

WOMEN’S VOLLEYBALL

NJ State Police Introduces Scholars Programs at Rutgers-Newark

NJ State Police Introduces Scholars Programs at Rutgers-Newark

The New Jersey Attorney General’s Office launched the New Jersey State Police Trustees Scholarship Program this year to encourage college-bound students to pursue careers in the law enforcement field.

12:17 pm, School of Communication Arts,

The Direction of Policy 2001,

The Student Health Advocates at Rutgers-Newark received 52,000 from the NJ Department of Health and Senior Services.

4:30 pm, The Joseph C. Cornwall Center for Metropolitan Studies in Humanities, director of Research.

The Student Health Advocates at Rutgers-Newark received $530,310 from the New Jersey Department of Health and Senior Services (NJDHS) as part of their 2001–2002 Community Coalition Grant.

The Student Health Advocates at Rutgers-Newark received $150,332

...and in influencing how government processes that involve community

...and in influencing how government processes that involve community

Citizens. The project is sponsored by the

of arts in jazz history—the world’s

Morgenstern is director of the most

Multiple-Grammy winner for his liner

Awards for the acclaimed Ken

Morgenstern recently acted as

Washington, member of the team that

The Rutgers-NJIT shuttle bus made 15,350 runs

The Key West Division of the NPS recognizes the value of expanding that collaboration with an outstanding academic institution in the state.

The program is sponsored by the

The Key West Division of the NPS recognizes the value of expanding that collaboration with an outstanding academic institution in the state.

The program is sponsored by the

the School of Criminal Justice.

The Key West Division of the NPS recognizes the value of expanding that collaboration with an outstanding academic institution in the state.

The program is sponsored by the

the School of Criminal Justice.

The Key West Division of the NPS recognizes the value of expanding that collaboration with an outstanding academic institution in the state.

The program is sponsored by the

the School of Criminal Justice.

The Key West Division of the NPS recognizes the value of expanding that collaboration with an outstanding academic institution in the state.

The program is sponsored by the

the School of Criminal Justice.

The Key West Division of the NPS recognizes the value of expanding that collaboration with an outstanding academic institution in the state.

The program is sponsored by the

the School of Criminal Justice.

The Key West Division of the NPS recognizes the value of expanding that collaboration with an outstanding academic institution in the state.

The program is sponsored by the

the School of Criminal Justice.

The Key West Division of the NPS recognizes the value of expanding that collaboration with an outstanding academic institution in the state.

The program is sponsored by the

the School of Criminal Justice.

The Key West Division of the NPS recognizes the value of expanding that collaboration with an outstanding academic institution in the state.

The program is sponsored by the

the School of Criminal Justice.

The Key West Division of the NPS recognizes the value of expanding that collaboration with an outstanding academic institution in the state.

The program is sponsored by the

the School of Criminal Justice.

The Key West Division of the NPS recognizes the value of expanding that collaboration with an outstanding academic institution in the state.

The program is sponsored by the

the School of Criminal Justice.

The Key West Division of the NPS recognizes the value of expanding that collaboration with an outstanding academic institution in the state.

The program is sponsored by the

the School of Criminal Justice.

The Key West Division of the NPS recognizes the value of expanding that collaboration with an outstanding academic institution in the state.

The program is sponsored by the

the School of Criminal Justice.

The Key West Division of the NPS recognizes the value of expanding that collaboration with an outstanding academic institution in the state.

The program is sponsored by the

the School of Criminal Justice.

The Key West Division of the NPS recognizes the value of expanding that collaboration with an outstanding academic institution in the state.

The program is sponsored by the

the School of Criminal Justice.

The Key West Division of the NPS recognizes the value of expanding that collaboration with an outstanding academic institution in the state.

The program is sponsored by the

the School of Criminal Justice.

The Key West Division of the NPS recognizes the value of expanding that collaboration with an outstanding academic institution in the state.

The program is sponsored by the

the School of Criminal Justice.

The Key West Division of the NPS recognizes the value of expanding that collaboration with an outstanding academic institution in the state.

The program is sponsored by the

the School of Criminal Justice.

The Key West Division of the NPS recognizes the value of expanding that collaboration with an outstanding academic institution in the state.

The program is sponsored by the

the School of Criminal Justice.
“Monks and Merchants: Silk Road Treasures from Northwest China, 6th–7th Century” will be on exhibit in the Asia Society’s expanded galleries along China’s Silk Road this fall. Juliano, chair of the visual and performing arts Department and a professor of art history at Rutgers, has collected 120 artifacts that show the cultural diversity and religious objects. The exhibition will be at the Asia Society from Oct. 13 through Jan. 6. The exhibition is sponsored by the Asia Society, the Chinese government, the Getty Foundation, and the University of Hong Kong. The exhibition will feature a range of objects from Chinese culture, including Buddhist cave sculptures, textiles, leather, painted tiles, Persian rugs, and religious art. The exhibition also includes Byzantine coins, Sasanian glass, Buddhist cave paintings, and other objects from their homeland. The exhibition will feature 120 artifacts from China, Japan, South Korea, and Taiwan. The exhibit is a collaborative effort between the Asia Society and the University of Hong Kong.

Rutgers-Newark Campus Comes Together
By Alina Hilder

“As a campus that lies in the shadow of the World Trade Center, we want to make sure that our response to the tragedy, or for information on the triage operation each day. By week’s end, at least 100 EMS workers were fed during each of the three shifts that came to work mapping the Ramapo fault.”

Tick Tack Tape (a selected list from spring and summer 2001)

By Carla Capizzi

“What's News & Merchants: Silk Road Treasures from Northwest China, 6th–7th Century” exhibition will be on exhibit in the Asia Society’s expanded galleries along China’s Silk Road this fall. Juliano, chair of the visual and performing arts Department and a professor of art history at Rutgers, has collected 120 artifacts that show the cultural diversity and religious objects. The exhibition will be at the Asia Society from Oct. 13 through Jan. 6. The exhibition is sponsored by the Asia Society, the Chinese government, the Getty Foundation, and the University of Hong Kong. The exhibition will feature a range of objects from Chinese culture, including Buddhist cave sculptures, textiles, leather, painted tiles, Persian rugs, and religious art. The exhibition also includes Byzantine coins, Sasanian glass, Buddhist cave paintings, and other objects from their homeland. The exhibition will feature 120 artifacts from China, Japan, South Korea, and Taiwan. The exhibit is a collaborative effort between the Asia Society and the University of Hong Kong. The exhibition will feature 120 artifacts from China, Japan, South Korea, and Taiwan. The exhibit is a collaborative effort between the Asia Society and the University of Hong Kong.
“Monks and Merchants: Silk Roads Treasures from Northwest China, 6th-7th Century,” an exhibition at Asia Society, will feature objects from the 6th through 7th centuries that were made to travel along China’s Silk Road. The exhibition contains over 70 works, the result of more than three years of research and collaboration. Rich Juliano, director of the Asia Society’s department and an expert on Asian art, has spent years researching the school’s collection of Chinese objects that will be on display at the Asia Society, along with objects from their homelands. The exhibition will be controversial since it shows the results of assimilation and ethnic identity and politics, and ultimately asks, “What does it mean to be Christian?” according to Juliano.

Northwestern China was often traveled by trade routes, and was an important part of China’s trade and traveling community. The exhibition contains objects from the 6th through 7th centuries and will be controversial since it shows the results of assimilation and ethnic identity and politics, and ultimately asks, “What does it mean to be Christian?” according to Juliano.

Tickertape (ticker tape article)

“China’s Silk Road Leads to An Art Professor’s Provocative Exhibition”

By Rich Juliano

“Monks and Merchants: Silk Roads Treasures from Northwest China, 6th-7th Century,” an exhibition at Asia Society, will feature objects from the 6th through 7th centuries that were made to travel along China’s Silk Road. The exhibition contains over 70 works, the result of more than three years of research and collaboration. Rich Juliano, director of the Asia Society’s department and an expert on Asian art, has spent years researching the school’s collection of Chinese objects that will be on display at the Asia Society, along with objects from their homelands. The exhibition will be controversial since it shows the results of assimilation and ethnic identity and politics, and ultimately asks, “What does it mean to be Christian?” according to Juliano.

Northwestern China was often traveled by trade routes, and was an important part of China’s trade and traveling community. The exhibition contains objects from the 6th through 7th centuries and will be controversial since it shows the results of assimilation and ethnic identity and politics, and ultimately asks, “What does it mean to be Christian?” according to Juliano.

Tickertape (ticker tape article)

“China’s Silk Road Leads to An Art Professor’s Provocative Exhibition”

By Rich Juliano

“Monks and Merchants: Silk Roads Treasures from Northwest China, 6th-7th Century,” an exhibition at Asia Society, will feature objects from the 6th through 7th centuries that were made to travel along China’s Silk Road. The exhibition contains over 70 works, the result of more than three years of research and collaboration. Rich Juliano, director of the Asia Society’s department and an expert on Asian art, has spent years researching the school’s collection of Chinese objects that will be on display at the Asia Society, along with objects from their homelands. The exhibition will be controversial since it shows the results of assimilation and ethnic identity and politics, and ultimately asks, “What does it mean to be Christian?” according to Juliano.

Northwestern China was often traveled by trade routes, and was an important part of China’s trade and traveling community. The exhibition contains objects from the 6th through 7th centuries and will be controversial since it shows the results of assimilation and ethnic identity and politics, and ultimately asks, “What does it mean to be Christian?” according to Juliano.

Tickertape (ticker tape article)

“China’s Silk Road Leads to An Art Professor’s Provocative Exhibition”

By Rich Juliano

“Monks and Merchants: Silk Roads Treasures from Northwest China, 6th-7th Century,” an exhibition at Asia Society, will feature objects from the 6th through 7th centuries that were made to travel along China’s Silk Road. The exhibition contains over 70 works, the result of more than three years of research and collaboration. Rich Juliano, director of the Asia Society’s department and an expert on Asian art, has spent years researching the school’s collection of Chinese objects that will be on display at the Asia Society, along with objects from their homelands. The exhibition will be controversial since it shows the results of assimilation and ethnic identity and politics, and ultimately asks, “What does it mean to be Christian?” according to Juliano.

Northwestern China was often traveled by trade routes, and was an important part of China’s trade and traveling community. The exhibition contains objects from the 6th through 7th centuries and will be controversial since it shows the results of assimilation and ethnic identity and politics, and ultimately asks, “What does it mean to be Christian?” according to Juliano.

Tickertape (ticker tape article)

“China’s Silk Road Leads to An Art Professor’s Provocative Exhibition”

By Rich Juliano

“Monks and Merchants: Silk Roads Treasures from Northwest China, 6th-7th Century,” an exhibition at Asia Society, will feature objects from the 6th through 7th centuries that were made to travel along China’s Silk Road. The exhibition contains over 70 works, the result of more than three years of research and collaboration. Rich Juliano, director of the Asia Society’s department and an expert on Asian art, has spent years researching the school’s collection of Chinese objects that will be on display at the Asia Society, along with objects from their homelands. The exhibition will be controversial since it shows the results of assimilation and ethnic identity and politics, and ultimately asks, “What does it mean to be Christian?” according to Juliano.

Northwestern China was often traveled by trade routes, and was an important part of China’s trade and traveling community. The exhibition contains objects from the 6th through 7th centuries and will be controversial since it shows the results of assimilation and ethnic identity and politics, and ultimately asks, “What does it mean to be Christian?” according to Juliano.

Tickertape (ticker tape article)

“China’s Silk Road Leads to An Art Professor’s Provocative Exhibition”

By Rich Juliano

“Monks and Merchants: Silk Roads Treasures from Northwest China, 6th-7th Century,” an exhibition at Asia Society, will feature objects from the 6th through 7th centuries that were made to travel along China’s Silk Road. The exhibition contains over 70 works, the result of more than three years of research and collaboration. Rich Juliano, director of the Asia Society’s department and an expert on Asian art, has spent years researching the school’s collection of Chinese objects that will be on display at the Asia Society, along with objects from their homelands. The exhibition will be controversial since it shows the results of assimilation and ethnic identity and politics, and ultimately asks, “What does it mean to be Christian?” according to Juliano.

Northwestern China was often traveled by trade routes, and was an important part of China’s trade and traveling community. The exhibition contains objects from the 6th through 7th centuries and will be controversial since it shows the results of assimilation and ethnic identity and politics, and ultimately asks, “What does it mean to be Christian?” according to Juliano.

Tickertape (ticker tape article)

“China’s Silk Road Leads to An Art Professor’s Provocative Exhibition”

By Rich Juliano

“Monks and Merchants: Silk Roads Treasures from Northwest China, 6th-7th Century,” an exhibition at Asia Society, will feature objects from the 6th through 7th centuries that were made to travel along China’s Silk Road. The exhibition contains over 70 works, the result of more than three years of research and collaboration. Rich Juliano, director of the Asia Society’s department and an expert on Asian art, has spent years researching the school’s collection of Chinese objects that will be on display at the Asia Society, along with objects from their homelands. The exhibition will be controversial since it shows the results of assimilation and ethnic identity and politics, and ultimately asks, “What does it mean to be Christian?” according to Juliano.

Northwestern China was often traveled by trade routes, and was an important part of China’s trade and traveling community. The exhibition contains objects from the 6th through 7th centuries and will be controversial since it shows the results of assimilation and ethnic identity and politics, and ultimately asks, “What does it mean to be Christian?” according to Juliano.

Tickertape (ticker tape article)

“China’s Silk Road Leads to An Art Professor’s Provocative Exhibition”

By Rich Juliano

“Monks and Merchants: Silk Roads Treasures from Northwest China, 6th-7th Century,” an exhibition at Asia Society, will feature objects from the 6th through 7th centuries that were made to travel along China’s Silk Road. The exhibition contains over 70 works, the result of more than three years of research and collaboration. Rich Juliano, director of the Asia Society’s department and an expert on Asian art, has spent years researching the school’s collection of Chinese objects that will be on display at the Asia Society, along with objects from their homelands. The exhibition will be controversial since it shows the results of assimilation and ethnic identity and politics, and ultimately asks, “What does it mean to be Christian?” according to Juliano.

Northwestern China was often traveled by trade routes, and was an important part of China’s trade and traveling community. The exhibition contains objects from the 6th through 7th centuries and will be controversial since it shows the results of assimilation and ethnic identity and politics, and ultimately asks, “What does it mean to be Christian?” according to Juliano.