The School of Public Affairs and Administration (SPAA) empowers students to make a real difference in government, nonprofit organizations, and the community. The school’s comprehensive degree and certificate programs provide professional competencies in public and nonprofit management and help students develop expertise in defining policy problems, analyzing quantitative and qualitative data, developing and communicating creative solutions, and implementing ethical and practical courses of action. Rutgers SPAA is highly ranked by U.S. News & World Report and is nationally and internationally accredited.

Rutgers SPAA’s academics are enhanced by a culture of learning through our distinguished faculty who generate knowledge and best practices in public and nonprofit management via their innovative research and community-based projects. Through our memorandums of understanding and collaborations with colleagues all over the world, SPAA provides its students with local and international networks and opportunities for learning, practice, and career destinations.
